KOYUKUK MERCHANT IS FINED FOR OPERATING UNSPECTED STEAMER

Sam Dublin, pioneer trader and merchant of the upper Koyukuk River, has been fined $1,000 for alleged illegal operation of a steamboat on that stream, according to official advice received by Collector of Customs J. C. McBride. Dublin has appealed the case to the Secretary of Commerce in an effort to have the ruling reversed and the fine set aside.

The penalty was imposed by Deputy Collector of Customs J. L. Abrams, of Seward. Dublin owns a trading post at Bettles, above the Arctic Circle on the Koyukuk River. He also owns and operates the sternwheeler Teddy H., hauling freight and passengers between Bettles and Bettles. He was charged with operating the boat without it having been inspected by the Board of Steamboat Inspectors and that it was operated by officers without licenses.

NORTHWESTERN 8 P. M. PRINCESS MARY AND JEFFERSON ARE ON WAY

Until 2:30 o'clock this afternoon local agents and the Juneau public knew not whether the steamships Northwestern, Jefferson and Princess Mary enroute north, were storm bound last night or whether they had "just naturally" disappeared, no word having been received from any of them since yesterday afternoon.

Finally this afternoon word was received from two of them and now the Northwestern, overdue eight hours is due to arrive at eight o'clock tonight, westbound. The Princess Mary which left Ketchikan yesterday morning and should have been here twenty-four hours later, left Wrangell at 3 o'clock this morning. If the steamer makes the high tide through Wrangell Narrows she should arrive here about 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. The Jefferson got away from Red Bluff Bay this forenoon but no time has been set for her arrival. The hour of arrival last set, yesterday, was for ten o'clock tonight.
